Sciencorums.

San Francisco consumes one third more liquor than Chicago.

A saloon keeper in Louisiana has just been compelled to pay $1,200 damages to a woman for selling liquor to her husband.

The several British settlements in South Africa are to be formed into a confederation after the model of the Dominion of Canada.

Most of the twenty-cent pieces coined by the San Francisco Mint have gone into the hands of the brokers, who retail them to the public at the low price of twenty-five cents each.

The total number of Post Offices in the entire Russian Empire, both in Europe and Asia, is 5,200. In London alone there are 630, and in England and Wales there are 9,260.

By a decree of the Italian Government no foreign ship in Italian waters is permitted to use the potatoes it has on board unless the whole supply is washed under the supervision of the authorities.

An old bachelor geologist was boasting that every rock was as familiar to him as the alphabet. A lady declared that she knew a rock of which he was ignorant. "Name it, madam," said he. "Rock the cradle sir," replied the lady.

A man in Portland, Oregon, thought he recognized an old friend, and proceeded to slap him heartily on the back and exclaim, "Hello, old fellow, where in hell did you come from?" before he found out that it wasn't his friend, but the Rev. E. Payson Hammond the revivalist.

A trans Rocky Mountain journalist who is on a sight-seeing tour East, informs his readers that they can eat tripe at Saratoga for $5 a day, or small Grants whiskey bottle at Long Branch for nothing, if within three feet of him; but that as far as he personally is concerned, he regards New York as the most agreeable and interesting spot he has seen since leaving his better half in the bonanza portion of the republic.

At the Court of Emperor William the imperial word weighs heavy and solemnly. If you want to acquit, it alone can give the permission. Since Chancellor Bismarck rose to power through the sheer irresistibility of his will and talents, intrigues have tried to trip him up in the eyes and ears of this solemn Majesty. These intrigues imagined fondly they had secured their bird catcher in the person of Armin. The latter worked most zealously to show his master that he frequently erred in his policy, and was not much of a Chancellor, all told; but this zeal was unavailing and the Fowler was caught in his own snare.

A lady who attended an amateur opera in Pittsburgh sends this bombshell into the ranks of the performers: "The physical degeneracy of the men of one day has seldom been so fully displayed in public as during the two recent performances of the 'Rose of Castile' by the Gounod Club. I was there on Friday night, and was astonished almost beyond measure at the exhibition of shriveled limbs, bony legs, and knock knees of their male possessors. It was a revelation to me; for poor, untutored child of nature that I am, I had supposed, from frequently seeing these same young men on the street and in the drawing rooms, wearing elegant suits of fine clothes, that they were shapely and comely in form, but the delusion was rudely dispelled by the anatomical display. I desire to say to the gentleman of the Gounod Club that before they sing another time in public it would be well for them to make arrangements with some plaining mill for a supply of sawdust with which to fill up their outlines and tone down the 'ragged edges.'"
